JEFFERSON FOOTBALL TEAM MEETS DEFEAT

Playing against a much heavier team, the Jefferson Union high school football team went down to defeat last Saturday by a score of 56 to 12, the game being played on Jefferson high school's beautiful grounds, the Burlingame Panthers being the victorious team.

It was the first P. A. L. game of the season for both teams, and there was a splendid crowd present to witness the contest.

Hugo Irons' 65 yard punt return was the outstanding feature of Jefferson's attack. He demonstrated his open field ability when he ran through the entire Panther team for a touchdown. The team as a whole showed an improvement over the last game, but Burlingame was just too strong for them. LeRoy SoRelle scored the other Indians' touchdown in the last quarter when he hit the line for 5 yards.

The Panthers showed a strong defense and a stronger offense. They scored 14 points in the first quarter, 7 in the second, 28 in the third, and 7 in the last. Burlingame made 17 first downs and Jefferson 4. The Indians used an aerial attack and completed six out of nineteen attempts.

The starting lineup was:

Jefferson		Burlingame
B. Gibbons	L E R	Bevilockway
Keithley	L T R	Montgomery
Putney	L G R	McRoskey
Friend	C	McLellan

The evening was spent playing games and dancing. Bill Lee and Bill Manford entertained the guests with a comedy sketch, and several songs and dances were rendered by the Knapp twins.

During the evening little Norma Evans, dressed as a flower girl in a white crepe paper dress, entered, wheeling a prettily decorated wagon containing a huge wedding cake with a bride, groom and twenty lighted candles on it, into the room, followed by the Knapp twins, who wheeled in a large box, and upon opening it Mrs. Felsch found it contained a beautiful set of dishes, a gift from her friends.

A very clever toast was read, composed by Mrs. Clara Lee, complimenting the bride and groom of twenty years and wishing them many more years of happiness.

THREE CARS CRASH ON WEST LAKE AVE.

A collision between a truck, a sedan and a roadster, last Monday morning on West Lake avenue and Mission street, left the truck undamaged, but caused the sedan and roadster to be hauled to a garage for repairs.

The truck, belonging to the Citizens Transfer Company and driven by R. C. Raicebick, was going south with a load of furniture when it encountered the roadster at West Lake avenue. In trying to avoid hitting the roadster, the driver of the truck did not see the sedan coming north and ran into it. The roadster tried to avoid hitting the truck and ran into the sedan, resulting in a general mixup, but most fortunately no one was injured.

The sedan belonged to William Gilmore, of 1228 Eighth avenue, San Francisco.

FAVOR FIRE PATROL TO PROTECT PARK

When Fire Warden Bert Werder and others brought the matter of forming a patrol and blazing trails through the Butano and Gazos districts before the county board of supervisors at the regular meeting in Redwood City last Monday, the members continued action on the situation when they instructed the warden to gather more data, make estimates of the cost of such a move and to find out to what extent the property owners will co-operate with the board.

It was suggested that the entire redwood district be made a game refuge, which, it was pointed out, would eliminate the possibility of fires, because hunters would not be allowed in there. Werder declared that he is certain that at least three of the seven fires in the wooded districts of the county during the summer were started from a hunter, or a motorist throwing a lighted cigarette or match into the dry grass.

Werder suggested that efforts be made to modify the law, wherein tie and picket companies in the redwood groves may be placed under the same restrictions as the operators in oak and pine forests. He pointed out that all of the fires started right around the California Tie and Timber company's yards.

One of the duties of a patrol would be to see that the operators of tie camps burn their rubbish and take adequate precautions against sparks flying, etc. Wide trails through the woods would make it possible to get a crew of fire fighters to the blaze easily and quickly.

According to Werder, the government is trying to find a location for a lookout tower, where a telephone will be installed, and where a ranger will be on duty. He said that the exact location of fires in these districts cannot be seen from the tower on Castle Rock in Santa Cruz county.

TWO BOYS CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH

A double birthday party was held last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Rivers, in honor of their son Frank, Jr., who celebrated his fourth birthday, and Jerry Jones, of 348 Vista Grande avenue, who celebrated his sixth birthday.

The children spent a wonderful afternoon playing games, after which refreshments were served. The decorations were carried out in old rose and blue, both in the room and at the table, and two large birthday cakes, one with four candles and one with six, were the center of attraction. The boys received many pretty gifts.

The little guests were Audrey Teal, Curtistine Teal, Raymond Nylund, Stanley Nylund, Anna Marie Nylund, Fred Kirchubel, Shirley Jones, Virginia Rivers and Josephine Rivers.

The bride, who was prettily dressed in white crepe dechine with tulle veil and carried white carnations, was attended by her godmother, Mrs. Rose Brown, as matron of honor, and Mr. Tony Brown was the best man. After the ceremony fifty of their friends motored to the bride's parents' home, where a wedding dinner was served, after which dancing was enjayed until a late hour.

After a honeymoon trip to Honolulu and Guam, to visit the groom's parents, the young couple will make their home in Daly City.

HIGHWAYS WILL BE PATROLLED AT NIGHT

In an effort to reduce serious automobile accidents at night on the highways of San Mateo county, Sheriff James J. McGrath will send out a deputy and furnish the automobile, and Captain Jimmie Logan of the traffic squad will send one of his men along, according to an arrangement decided upon at the regular meeting of the county board of supervisors last Monday.

The highways will be patrolled at night, because it was recently revealed that out of twenty-nine automobile accidents in which people were killed, from January 1 to August 1, only three of them occurred in daytime.

Captain Logan also agreed to see that a traffic officer is stationed at Walbridge street near Bayshore, where the street car comes down and goes up a steep grade and over which motorists are said to travel at a high rate of speed. The board was told that intoxicated motorists frequently speed down the grade, hurdle a ditch yards, thinking that the road conand land in the Southern Pacific tinues straight ahead instead of making the turn.

District Attorney Franklin Swart again appeared before the board, in regard to the traffic situation in this county, and said: "No traffic officer must again be caught in places where raids are made. The very next time one of them is found in such a place, I will broadcast the names and facts to the public."

Swart also gave the county squad a pat on the back when he said: "I have had excellent reports about all of the traffic officers during the past week. Furthermore, there has not been a single report of an automobile accident in the county yesterday, Sunday." He added that the motorists are asking what is the reason they can't make speed any more.

The board was asked to dedicate to public use roads made by the old San Mateo Land Association. Hearing was set for November 5.

The protests of two residents of Rio Verde street in Visitacion Valley, relative to street improvement assessments, was overruled when it was brought out that some fifty other residents of the vicinity approved the assessments by unanimous vote at a recent meeting. The board adopted the resolution confirming the assessments.

Deputy County Auditor E. M. Stack was given authority to make a change in the assessment roll, which would bring $1,600 more into the treasury. He was also granted permission to make a correction in the county budget, which would increase the county library fund $180.

In a resolution, the Coastside Civic League commended the board for its action in forming road district No. 9, which calls for a coastside road from San Francisco to Santa Cruz.

Space will be donated, according to a communication to the board, this year for the San Mateo county exhibit at the California Food Products' annual exposition to be held in San Francisco, October 20 to 27, providing the county prepares and maintains the display. The matter was referred to the county chamber of commerce.

The safety conference of the California Development Association in a resolution asked the board to appoint two men, furnish an automobile and otherwise provide a night patrol for the highways of this county.

DALY CITY METHODIST CHURCH

Next Sunday evening at the Daly City Methodist church the pastor, Rev. George Woodall, will preach on the subject, "What is the Purpose of the Church." Some people say that the need for the church, as an institution, has passed. Mr. Woodall says he will show that the church still meets a very definite need of the religious and social life of every community. The service is at 8 o'clock. The Epworth League will meet at 7 p. m.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church are giving a public supper at the church tonight (Friday). Serving begins at 6:30 o'clock.

SCOUTS TO ENTERTAIN ON NOVEMBER NINTH

Troop 149 of the Boy Scouts of America are very proud to announce that they are rapidly attaining the goal of all Scouts, and that is to have the best Scout troop in the vicinity of Daly City, and perhaps the best in San Mateo county in time to come.

Under the leadership of Chester Smith and Carl Rehbock, and also the splendid co-operation of the boys, this troop has grown by leaps and bounds. Crocker Tract has a large number of red-blooded boys who in a few years of Scout training will become perfectly fit for the activities of young men in their chosen paths of life.

Troop 149 will give a demonstration in the City Hall of Daly City on November 9. This will consist of drilling, signaling, first aid, and other things of interest. It is fervently hoped that the people of Daly City will encourage the Scout movement by attending and viewing what the boys have accomplished. There will probably be other Scouts in attendance, and it is probable that the San Mateo Scout band will provide music.

The boys cordially invite everybody to attend this Scout exhibition. Come and see your boys in action.

AL'S PROHIBITION PROGRAM

With the election only a few weeks off, it is necessary to reiterate that the country will not go to the devil no matter who is elected. Fortunately both parties nominated able men whose integrity has not been successfully question, men of action, with high standards of conduct. In the hands of either the reins of goverment will be held tight and a competent driver will guide the team.

Nevertheless, on the issues of the campaign and weighing the personalities and backgrounds of the two men, we prefer Herbert Hoover. We doubt whether Al Smith, professedly and openly wet, can bring to the task of enforcing prohibition the same degree of sincerity as Herbert Hoover. In fact we know that he can't. And we do not want the carnival of crime and corruption growing out of lax attempts at enforcement to grow worse.

Governor Smith personally favors modification of the Volstead Act and repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, yet he must know that both objects cannot possibly be accomplished. There can be no modification of the Volstead Act sufficiently drastic to satisfy the wets—unless the modofication nullified the Constitution. And this object—nullification—seems to be in the background of Al Smith's mind. We are not ready for it. Before it is tried, we would like a sincere and wholehearted trial of real enforcement.

Of course every child knows that a repeal of the prohibition amendment of the Constitution is just as probable as Henry Ford's going to the poor house. The legislatures of thirteen states can block such a repeal, and twenty-six states had gone dry before the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment. Therefore the one course open to Smith is nullification, a course which is distasteful to a large majority of the voters in the Far West.—Sunset Magazine.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The annual game census as reported by Field and Stream discloses that there are only 880 grizzly bears in the national forests in the United States, outside of Alaska, and 50 per cent of these are in Montana—not a single individual grizzly is reported from any of the national forests in California, a State in which these animals once were abundant.

Survey of sites proposed for inclusion in the State park system, for which a $6,000,000 bond issue will be on the ballot in November, has so far covered 169 of the 297 suggested parks, the State Park Commission announced recently. The result of the survey will be submitted to the legislature in December.

Decision to start work on the new $2,000,000 International House financed by John D. Rockefeller Jr., on the Berkeley campus of the University of California in April, 1929, has been reached. The building will be ready for occupancy by 500 foreign and American students in August, 1930.

Aviation in California is setting a new record in its financial progress so far in 1928, according to an announcement by J. M. Friedlander, Commissioner of Corporations. To date, thirty-eight companies with a total authorized capitalization of $7,020,000 have been authorized by the department to sell and issue capital stock aggregating $3,134,149. Records of 1927 show that thirty-three applications to sell stock in aviation projects, with a total capitalization of $22,055,000, and an authorized capital stock of $3,577,873, were allowed.

Airplane insurance policies covering fire, burglary, theft, liability and accidents may be written by California insurance companies under existing State law. Atty. Gen. U. S. Webb advised Charles R. Detrick a few days ago that aircraft insurance may be handled along these lines until such time as the State Legislature sees fit to pass special insurance legislation dealing with the aviation industry.

There are at least 3,000 blind persons now in California and slightly over 400 of them are in physical and mental condition to benefit by State vocational training. Such are the preliminary findings announced recently in the adult blind survey being conducted under the supervision of Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, director of the State Department of Social Welfare. The survey will continue for at least two months more.

The Chrysler Corporation has purchased a fifty-acre tract near Oakland for a reported sum of $250,000, on which it is expected that an automobile assembly plant, costing approximately $7,000,000, will be erected. Although no announcement has been made by Chrysler officials in Detroit, where the deal was consummated, it is believed that the plant is to be used for the distribution of the new Chrysler built Plymouth.

The oldest regular air passenger service in the United States is now doing the heaviest business in its history. It is the line between Wilmington and Avalon, Catalina Island, a twenty-five minute flight across the waters of the Pacific, made in hydroplanes. Steamers take three hours for the same journey. The service has been maintained regularly for seven years and there has never been an accident on the line. It recently was merged with the system of airways operated by Western Air Express, Inc.

Gasoline tax revenues collected by the various States last year netted a total for the Nation of $258,966,851. California, with the largest registration of any State collecting such a tax and with the highest ratio of cars per population in the Union, raised a greater amount of road revenues by this method than any other State. Motorists in California paid a total of $22,467,083. Of the total collected in the Nation, $182,095,503 was available for the construction and maintenance of State highways under the supervision of the State highway departments and $55,440,161 was apportioned to counties for local road purposes and engineers at Oakland.

For eight months, during 1932, California will focus the eyes of the world. The California Tenth Olympiad Association, now actively planning the handling of games which will make the State the center for all activities four years hence, has for its immediate concern the ratification of proposition No. 2, on the ballot for November 6 election, as this will provide for State assistance in financing the games. California legislators, recognizing the tremendous importance of the Olympic Games in the entire State, voted to assist financially to the extent of $1,000,000. Because of a constitutional amendment involved, the voters are required to ratify the action of the legislature.

Warning that numerous unscupulous salesmen are now operating in California is issued to housewives by the State corporation department. Numerous complaints received at the office of the department at Sacramento state these salesmen are offering aluminum ware, suits of clothing and other articles and are securing customers through the misrepresentation of their wares. The delivered articles are greatly inferior to the samples shown to customers. "All persons should be on guard against these dishonest salesmen," the department warning said.

New Policy in Freshman Athletics This Fall.

The University of Pennsylvania inaugurated a new policy in freshman athletics this fall when the gridiron schedule of the first-year men was limited to one contest, with the Cornell Frosh, on November 10.

In the past, first-year teams have played a complete schedule of from four to six games with other freshman college teams and with leading preparatory schools. One or more of the games were played away from home with the result that the yearlings were forced to be absent from classes.

Louis A. Young, head coach of the varsity team, has always been a strong advocate of freshmen devoting all their time to study. It has been his belief that the excitement of approaching games has cast a shadow over studies in the life of freshman football players, resulting in conditions and other scholastic worries that frequently caused the loss of star athletes.

This season the yearlings are working out with the varsity on Franklin field, imbibing the system they must play in their sophomore and subsequent years. The experience gained from contact with the varsity should prove invaluable to the first-year men.

Freshman teams have held several scrimmages a year with the regulars in the past, but this year they will have workouts against the upper classmen almost every day.

Captain Butler, who two years ago was placed on a second All-American team, is the head coach of the yearlings this season. He will coach the linemen and will be assisted by Alfred Langdon and Al Kreuz. Butler and Langdon were members of the coaching staff last season, while Kreus, a star several seasons ago, will be making his debut as a tutor.

Barney Berlinger, member of the United States Olympic team, who played tackle for the yearlings last season, is among the end candidates. His speed and size should make him an ideal wing man. Last fall he displayed more than average ability on the gridiron.

Just Another Yarn on Rube Waddell

When Rube Waddell was pitching for Minneapolis, Joe Cantillon, his manager, let him off one day to go fishing in Minnetonka. Waddell came in with a fine string of bass and presented them to Cantillon. A month later Cantillon got a bill from a local fish dealer which read:

"J. Cantillon, Dr.

"Eight bass . . . $1.60."

"Cheap enough," the baseball man told the fish dealer, "but I never bought any bass."

"Oh," explained the latter, "that's a string Rube Waddell bought here and charged to you."

Boston One-Legged Golf "Bug" Often Breaks 100

Though he has but one leg, Eddie Gisburne, radio announcer at station WEEI, Boston, has learned to play golf well enough to break 100 regularly, a score not reached by many physically perfect duffers.

Gisburne lost his leg while serving with American forces at Vera Cruz in 1914.

In taking up golf he had to conquer the perplexing problem of acquiring a swing. He now hits a tee shot for 180 yards and can play iron and putt shots as well as the average two-legged golfer.

The curious part of Gisburne's game is that he can play a full wood shot and maintain his balance.

French Customs Men Move to Police Air

Convinced that smuggling of forbidden articles into France is being carried on by means of airplane and increasing at a rate which cannot be coped with by the ordinary personnel of the airport customs offices the finance department has received a request that a fleet of contraband chasers be created by the air authorities. The chaser planes would be authorized to order by signals the descent of the incoming airplane at the nearest landing field and its contents closely inspected. One estimate is that more than 1,000,000,000 francs worth of material brought into France in this manner pays no duty—gems from Holland and Belgium; securities from England and Germany, and works of arts from the countries of south and central Europe.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

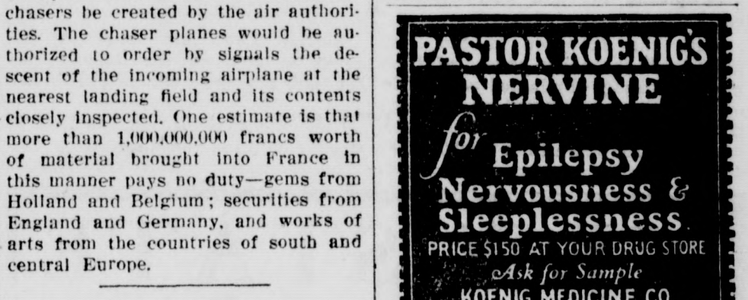
you'd know it anywhere!



"DID you hear Hoover? What did you think of that speech of Smith's?"

Hear this historic campaign clearly through an Atwater Kent. You won't miss a word—a syllable. Atwater Kent tone is famous for clarity. Atwater Kent workmanship can be relied upon. Atwater Kent resources make prices low.

Electric or battery—your choice

Some homes have central-station electricity, some don't. Both kinds want fine radio. So Atwater Kent offers modern instruments in two forms.

With the all-electric set, you need no batteries. Your radio is operated in the same way your lamps are lighted—from the house current, either A. C. or D. C. The current costs considerably less than a cent an hour—about as much as reading a newspaper by the light of a single 40-watt lamp. Think of hearing Smith or Hoover for less than a cent!

With an Atwater Kent battery set the programs will also come in clearly and strongly—whether you want speech or music—for the Atwater Kent name-plate on any set spells good, reliable reception.

Nearly 2,000,000 owners prove it

There's nothing untried about Atwater Kent Radio. Each year for six years it has set the pace in improvements, performance and price. Among rural families as well as in the cities, it is far and away the leader in sales and popularity. The nearest Atwater Kent dealer will be glad to give you a demonstration and advise you in the selection of your model.

GETTING INTO A RUT

Owing to the growing tendency toward specilization in every department of human activity, it is becoming more difficult for the average man to keep in touch with what is going on outside his own immediate interests. He becomes so engrossed with his special line of work that he runs a great risk of getting into a rut.

While the exactions of modern business and profesisonal life lead necessarily to a high degree of specialization, they should not be permitted to undly restrict one's mental horizon. Everyone should take sufficient time to keep abreast with important developments in the world about him. By doing so he will be of practical benefit in his own sphere of effort.

Above all, he should lay aside routine duties frequently for the purpose of indulging in systematic thinking. Many men are able to evolve their best ideas in some quiet spot away from the scenes of their daily labors.

Whatever may be the details of any method adopted, a portion of one's time should be devoted to sound reading, covering varied subjects. Otherwise he will inevitably get into a rut. And getting into a rut is bad for his intellect and bad for his business.

HOW FIRES START

If your home or business building burns down it will generally be due to one of six preventable causes, according to the National Fire Waste Council, which names these:

1. Improper building construction.
2. Defective wiring or other improper installation of equipment furnishing heat, power and lights.
3. Careless storage or handling of explosives and inflammable liquids.
4. Handling and use of nitro-cellulose films.
5. Accumulations of trash and rubbish.
6. Carelessness with matches and in disposing of cigar and cigarette butts.

With the exception of the first named, all the above causes of fires may be largely eliminated with little or no expense. Summed up, the fact is that at least two-thirds of the fires which destroy more than $500,000,000 worth of property and about 15,000 human lives each year may be traced directly to pure carelessness.

It is a terrible price to pay for stupidity and reckless disregard of danger.

REFORMER CONFESSES

Often in our early enthusiasms we battle for causes which seem to us of supreme importance at the time, but which we may later conclude were not so vital, after all.

In a recent magazine article, a well known writer and lecturer gives his experience along this line. He has been quite a reformer in his time. Among the causes for which he has fought with tongue and pen are the single tax, the direct primary, votes for women, the League of Nations, spelling reform, and prohibition. His present views on these questions are interesting. They are quoted as his views, without further comment. He says:

"Single tax still seems good to me, but vastly less important or likely of attainment than it appeared in the height of my excitement about the great cause.

"I have reluctantly concluded that the direct primary will not change the nature of man very much.

"I still think we should be officially in the League, but I no longer believe that it is an idealistic institution.

"I still think women are entitled to the ballot, but I can't see that they are doing such wonders with it.

"Spelling reform engaged my attention at one time, but I am beginning to think that people are entitled to spell correctly if they insist upon it.

"I heated myself and my audiences to incandescent luminosity for the cause of prohibition, and now that the cause is written into the constitution, I am inclined to think we traded a wasp for an adder."

It isn't necessary to say to the bride "with all my worldly goods I thee endow." She'll get 'em, if any.

Sinclair Lewis has bought a Vermont farm. Now the Babbits may get their revenge when he goes broke.

Cheer up, Constitution, the first 18 amendments are the hardest.

ENCOURAGING CRIME

Carelessness and stupidity on the part of the victims is responsible for much of the thieving and swindling which has reached such alarming proportions in this country, amounting to approximately two billions a year.

Some of the specific weaknesses of our "easy marks" are pointed out by a leading criminologist, who enumerates cashing checks for strangers, leaving automobiles unprotected, carrying unnecessary large sums of money, buying real estate without seeing it or investigating its title, investing in stocks and schemes without consulting a banker, trying to beat gamblers at their own games, lending money and extending credit to persons of doubtful honesty, and so on.

If people fail to exercise any caution whatever in these matters, no law or official action can effectively protect them from thieves, swindlers and dead beats.

While the punishment of criminals often occurs, it usually happens too late to do the victim any good, so far as recovering his money or property is concerned.

Honest people have it in their own power to greatly reduce losses from the above mentioned causes, by merely exercising ordinary good judgment, instead of indulging in reckless practices which encourage crime.

BUILD ROADS TO LAST

In this remarkable era of good road building, much discussion of methods and materials to be employed in construction has been heard. Various types of roads have their advocates and claims are made for the superiority of each.

As a matter of fact, so far as the material is concerned, local conditions may be permitted to govern to a great extent, provided any one of the well tested kinds that may be available is used. It would seem to be inadvisable to ship road materials great distances when an equally good product might be secured close at hand.

But regardless of the surfacing material to be used, the grading and foundations should be of a permanent nature.

Every interest of economy demands that before any great sum is spent on the improvement of a road the final surveys and establishment of grades should be made, so that fills may be allowed to settle and become compact before surfacing is done.

A firm foundation is highly desirable in any undertaking, and nowhere is this more strikingly true than in road building.

BLINDFOLDED SMOKERS

Can you pick out your favorite cigarette by its taste and smell if blindfolded while smoking several different kinds? The question has been raised recently through claims made in advertisements that this can be done by users of a certain brand.

According to Louis Goodman of Reed College in Oregon, who made exhaustive tests covering two months with twenty confirmed smokers, these smokers distinguished their favorite brands only once out of eight times while blindfolded. Pure guessing would have given correct answers oftener than that.

He also found that the smokers could seldom tell the difference between cigarettes made of domestic tobacco and those containing straight Turkish. After smoking three of his favorite brand, one smoker offered to bet that neither of the three were of that brand, and so on.

As a result of his experiments, Mr. Goodman concluded that the preference of a smoker for this or that brand is due to imagination, probably stimulated by advertising. Try the blindfold test on yourself if you don't believe him.

WHAT BECOMES OF KILLERS

Every newspaper reader sees accounts of many murders, but few are able to follow the cases through to learn what really becomes of the killers, excepting in a few notable crimes.

One of America's largest life insurance companies has studied the records covering 146 cases in which its policy-holders were killed by other persons. Here is what it found:

Of the 146 killers, thirty-two were found to have been justified in killing.

Of the remaining 114 killers, forty-five were never indicted, as twenty-two committed suicide, fifteen are still at large, and eight were turned loose for lack of evidence.

Of the sixty-nine who were indicted, sixteen were acquitted, eleven were "no trial" cases, one was a mistrial, so that only forty-one were found guilty.

Of the forty-one found guilty, thirty-five are serving prison sentences, six cases have been appealed, three have been granted new trials, one was paroled, one paid a fine—and one paid the death penalty.

In the light of the above facts—and they are facts— it is little wonder that the United States has seventeen times as many murders as England and six times as many as our neighbor, Canada, according to population.

The position of town clerk of Middletown, R. I., has been filled by the same person for 55 years, and has been in the hands of the same family for nearly a century.

A man's strongest friend is usually his pipe.

DEBASING CRUELTY

In many persons there appears to be a well defined inclination to cruelty, especially toward animals, upon which they inflict needless suffering without the slightest pity. In fact, many seem to take a fiendish delight in the agonies of unfortunate creatures.

To one of normal sensibilities, it is hard to explain this sort of depravity, which is often found among children, as well as among older persons. It must be a manifestation of animal instincts handed down from savage and brutal ancestors. Cruelty to animals indicates a certain baseness, which usually includes cruel propensities towards human beings.

Children should be taught early to avoid practices which tend to make them callous to the agonies of helpless creatures. It should be explained to them that when it is necessary to kill animals for food or for the safety of human life, it should be done as swiftly and humanely as possible; never with a desire to inflict pain.

Teachers in schools and Sunday schools might do a great deal more than is being done now in the way of humane education, while parents should especially observe and endeavor to correct tendencies toward cruelty on the part of their children.

USING THE SCHOOL HOUSE

In many communities it is becoming more and more the custom to make use of school buildings for a variety of helpful purposes, in addition to that for which they are primarily intended.

Where no other building is available, the school house affords a convenient place for pleasant and profitable gatherings, such as men's and women's clubs, boys' and girls' clubs, debating societies, singings, public speakings, entertainments and the like.

While practically every school house is utilized for some of these urposes, in many communities a complete winter program is planned, so as to make it a regular social center, around which all neighborhood activities revolve.

This tends to foster a spirit of cooperation and neighborliness, which is extremely beneficial. With the advent of the radio, these gatherings may have music and other features of broadcast programs to enliven the evening, at little expense.

By systematically using these means so readily at hand, the country school house may greatly contribute to the attractiveness of rural life.

WOMEN'S POULTRY POOL

Canada has long been noted for the extent and success of its farmers' co-operative marketing enterprises, which have materially aided in the solution of at least a portion of its agricultural problems.

The co-operative movement has attracted the strong support of farm women in many parts of the Dominion, an outstanding example of their activities in this line being the Saskatchewan egg and poultry pool, with a membership of 18,000, composed almost entirely of farmers' wives, with four women on its board of directors.

Last year this association handled 70 per cent of the eggs marketed in the province, and 86 per cent of those exported, its total volume of business amounting to $721,329.

This showing is all the more remarkable from the fact that the larger portion of the product comes not from exclusive puoltry farms, but from those in which poultry raising is only a side line to grain production.

Whenever the co-operative marketing of agricultural products is seriously attempted, the active support of farm women should be diligently sought. The Saskatchewan poultry pool is a splendid example of what they can accomplish through their aptitude for intelligent co-operative effort.

FUNNY BREAKS

Some of the funniest things in print are not those produced by writers who try to be humorous, but are the result of accident, through careless writing and proof-reading.

The following paragraphs, all of which appeared in various newspapers and magazines, are samples:

"Drury and John Lacey wish to announce that the Lacey caught at Lida is no relation of theirs. They claim none of their folks has ever been caught."

"Dozens of hens gave their all to satisfy the appetites of the town people."

"The family was made ill by pantomime poisoning."

"To trade, $60 lady's plush coat; also girls for load of hay."

"Farmer boy, aged 40, wants position on small, slender widow's ranch."

"Preaching by Rev. Ewing has been very forceful and cutting. The subject Friday night is 'Breaking Through.'"

SURVEY SHOWS OTHER STATES ARE AHEAD IN STATE PARKS

Although ranking second in area and seventh in population, California is twenty-fifth in number of State Parks, and tenth in point of acreage, according to a preliminary survey made on behalf of the California State Park Commission. This is in spite of the fact that her population is increasing more rapidly than any other state. New York, first in population, possesses 89 State Parks with an acreage of 2,147,102; Illinois, Michigan and Texas each have more than 50; Iowa, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Minnesota and Washington each have more than 20, while California has only 7 with a total acreage of 13,000. Though covering 5 percent of the area of the United States, California has only one-half of one per cent of the total area of all State Parks.

New York, in the past 15 years, has issued $27,500,000 in State Park bonds. On November 6, Illinois will vote on a $20,000,000 State Parks bond issue, while on the same day Pennsylvanians will vote on a Park bond issue of $25,000,000. And on November 6th, California, with a population of 5,000,000, will will vote on a $6,000,000 Park bond issue, Amendment 4 on the ballot. The provisions of the California Act require that before bond issue proceeds are spent for parks, equal matching funds must be provided from private or local sources, in the case of each park project. Thus, for an expenditure of $6,000,000 by the State, a $12,000,000 system of parks will ultimately be acquired.

FOREIGN WAR VETS TO STAGE PAGEANT

The Military Order of the Cootie, play organization of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, are to hold one of their famous "scratches" at the "Ten Years After" celebration and pageant to be staged by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Galbraith Post No. 818, at K. of C. Hall, 150 Golden Gate Ave., on the nights of November 2 and 3. With their wives, families, and friends looking on this unique organization of America's foreign service fighters are to stage one of their "dizziest" ceremonials under the direction of the leading cooties of the order.

This is only a part of the big program to be staged at the two night affair to which the public has been invited. Reunions of comrades who fought side by side in the Great War, those who chased Datu Ali in the Philippines, the leathernecks who guarded American lives and property in Shanghai, the navy men who made a record for themselves at Secony Hill, and the veterans who participated in the wars, campaigns, expeditions, and skirmishes conducted on foreign soil and in foreign waters will also have their inning. Motion pictures taken by the Signal Corps overseas and showing the 91st division, First Artillery Park, 77th Division, First Division, and many other units in action are to be shown continuously at the affair.

The president of a Youngstown, Ohio, manufacturing plant carried on a telephone conversation recently to a distant southwestern point and landed an order for $450,000 worth of business.

Looks as though some husbands also may have been picked out in a blindfold test.

SIDELIGHTS

Great latitude is permitted political leaders and candidates in making predictions of election results and no matter how wild their claims or guesses may be, the American people good-naturedly forget about it when the battle is over. It is understood that no politician is expected to tell the truth about the outlook for his party's success, even if he could reasonably foretell the result. Little responsibility attaches to any statement or prediction made during a political campaign.

Occasionally a paragrapher ventures to revamp the joke anent boarding house prunes. The boarding house may still be a joke but the prune is not, commercially at least. The United States now exports more than 110,000 tons of dried prunes annually, besides those consumed in domestic boarding houses and elsewhere.

M. Kratsnotschekof, who gave up his American citizenship in 1917 to return to Russia and who later became president of the Far Eastern Soviet republic, has been sentenced to six years in prison for misuse of bank funds. It appears that he had better remained an American citizen in Chicago, where he lived comfortably before the war. We can't work up much sympathy for M. Kratsnotschekof.

Plans and specifactions for a wife desired by a man in Petersborough, Ontario, as per his advertisement: "I want a good, honest, respectable girl with a clean past, between 18 and 28, of good family, refined, educated, broadminded, with some money and good looking. Prefer one accomplished in music, a lover of home, nature and outdoors." Line of applicants will form on the right for inspection.

Mirrors placed on the rear end of street cars in such manner as to force pasengers to face forward in order to see themselves in a position to alight correctly, is the clever device of a German student of psychology. Women are especially inclined to alight with faces to the rear and the mirrors are said to correct this dangerous practice. We suspect that most men take a sly glance at the silvered glass, also.

Prof. Barnes of Smith College declares that "there is not the slightest iota of freedom of choice allowed to either the criminal or normal citizen in his daily conduct." His contention is that every person does what he does because of influences of birth, environment, experiences and his physical condition, in spite of himself. Prof. Barnes states the advanced scientific view on the subject and maybe he is right, but it gives too many people an excuse for their meanness.

Much interest is being manifested in a controversy now going on regarding possession of the horns of the cow used by Dr. Jenner in his experiments which led to the discovery of veccination for smallpox. If the various claimants are to be believed, at least five of the said cow's horns have been located.

One morning recently a Providence, R. I., subscriber picked up his telephone and, within a short time, carried on separate conversations with London, Brussels, Paris, Rotterdam, New York and Chicago.

From the statements of their campaign managers, it is hard to see how either Hoover or Smith can lose.

If this political excitement keeps up we may get out 50 per cent of the vote on November 6.

INTERESTING ATTRACTIONS AT THE STATE THEATRE

During the coming week there will be a number of interesting attractions at the State Theatre, at Mission and Oliver streets. This Saturday, October 20, the feature picture will be "The Girl from Chicago," in which Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy have the leading roles. The Juvenile entertainers will also be on hand with an interesting bill.

There will be two features on Sunday, Esther Ralston in "Something Always Happens," and Ken Maynard in "Somewhere in Sonora." Both of these pictures are highly recommended by the management.

"The Racket," one of the most interesting of Thomas Meighan's many successes, will be presented for two days, Monday and Tuesday, October 22 and 23. This popular star shares honors with Marie Prevost in this production.

On Wednesday and Thursday, October 24 and 25, the State will present George O"Brien and Janet Gaynor in "Sunrise." There will also be comedy, a News reel and other attractions.

Eddie's Advershow is scheduled for Friday, October 26. The feature picture will be "The Magnificent Flirt," in which Florence Vidor has the leading part.

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 217 Cadwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her.

"Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Some second thoughts occur several minutes later.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her So Much

Kingston, Mo.—"I have not taken anything but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for 18 months and I cannot praise it enough. I weighed about 100 pounds and was not able to do any kind of work. CHAPTER XII—Continued

—25—

"No, doctor," Payson Grant said, with what dignity he could summon. "I am not a murderer. I am in a very unfortunate position in several ways. Instead of having the sympathy of my friend and host I am illegally imprisoned in that closet and accused of murdering a man who came to kill me."

The doctor glanced at the sheriff.

"Doesn't seem quite fair, does it?"

"Let's take a look at the scene of the crime," said the voice of authority. He turned to his deputy. "Keep him here." He turned to the man in the dressing gown. "You're under arrest. Best keep your mouth shut till we come down."

The deputy sheriff slipped the hand cuffs over Grant's wrists. Grant saw the four men disappear and a great fear settled on him. He shuddered to think at what they must, even now, be looking. Why had he not raised an outcry after the shooting? How is it they had been out so short a while? He looked at the bovine face of the deputy who was chewing tobacco.

"It was justifiable homicide," he declared.

"That's what they all say," the deputy murmured, looking into the fire.

Payson Grant gained little solace when the four came downstairs. It was the doctor with the piercing eyes and direct, embarrassing stare, who assumed the lead in the conversation. None of them paid any attention to the handcuffed man.

"One shot at that range would have stopped him," the doctor declared, "and yet this man pumped six of them into his heart. You gentlemen are certain you heard no cries for help or no sounds of a struggle?"

"I can swear to it," Weld declared. "There was neither time for a struggle nor for cries," Grant interrupted.

"I'm not a lawyer," said the doctor, "but I'm bound to say things don't look well for you, my man. The degree of premeditation is a considerable factor in the consideration of crime."

"The premeditation was on Sutton's part, not mine," Grant said eagerly. "That can be proved. Did you take any letters from his pockets?"

"There was nothing in any pocket."

"My wife read the letters I mean. She'll corroborate them."

"I'm afraid," said the doctor, "she won't be able to aid you materially. What do you think, sheriff?"

"It's my belief those letters never had any existence," he answered.

"By the dead man's side I found a cigarette two-thirds smoked. It was of a brand in the silver box which evidently had been on the overturned table. He had been smoking?"

Grant remembered that Sutton had taken one of his cigarettes.

"Yes," he said.

"And you lighted one a little after he did. Your own was only half smoked. You did smoke, didn't you?"

"Yes," Grant admitted.

"And you are going to ask a jury to believe that after sitting down long enough for him to smoke two-thirds of a cigarette you suddenly felt impelled to slay an unarmed man for motives of self-preservation. You have already told us that you had no time for a struggle or even to call to these gentlemen for assistance. I do not think you will find a jury to credit what you tell it. Few murderers confess their guilt, but most of them take more pains with their statements that you have done."

The sheriff turned to his deputy.

"Bring him along, Steve."

"Where are you taking me to?" Grant demanded.

"The county lockup," said the deputy.

"I suppose I can get you gentlemen any time I want you?" the sheriff inquired.

"We shall be on the end of the wire any time you need us," Weld answered.

It was into a big, old limousine that they pushed the wretched Grant. He sat between doctor and sheriff; the deputy drove. It was a long trip down the steep grades in the darkness. Grant found himself utterly ignored. The two men talked across him continually. They discussed celebrated murder trials with the enthusiasm of Brewster.

"My God!" Grant cried, at last. "Isn't there anything else to talk about?"

"Sleep if you don't want to listen," the sheriff said gruffly.

The automobile stopped at daybreak at a coffee-wagon outside a town unknown to Grant. The three proceeded to drink hot coffee and munch crullers.

"Don't I get any?" Grant asked querulously. He was cold. "I'm all in."

"It may do you good," said the doctor. He handed Grant a cup and watched him drink it down eagerly.

"That's going to do you good," he asserted. "Want anything to eat?"

"It would choke me," said Grant.

CHAPTER XIII

"Stone Walls Do Not a Prison Make."

There was no shock of the many which had made Payson Grant's life of late miserable comparable to the dreadful anguish of his awakening.

He was in a prison cell. And it was not a cell attached to some remote county seat among the Adirondacks. He knew with a fearful certainty that, through some happenings of which he was not yet cognizant, he was in that dread Hudson-side fortress of guarded men, Sing Sing.

The overwhelming proofs of it swept away doubt instantly. He was in prison garb and he was lying on a cot in a typical cell. The meager appurtenances of the convict were around him. There was that faintly nauseating odor which spoke of dirt combated by disinfectants.

Through the barred window he could see the steel rods which guarded a larger aperture across what he supposed was a corridor. And through this second aperture he could see the river; and beyond that a line of barges passing Haverstraw. He knew the Hudson's topography too well to allow himself to be deceived. Always when he had passed the somber, gray building in the Albany boats he had stared at it with fascination such a walled city has for the free man.

Nearer at hand was a section of a stone wall along which strolled a blue-clad prison guard over whose left arm was a rifle. Every hope he might have tried to hold was proved useless. He, Payson Grant, was in Sing Sing and a convict.

He sat on the edge of his cot and tried to account for it. By what unremembered stages had he reached this pass? What lapses of consciousness had brought him here?

The last vivid recollection he had was riding in the limousine handcuffed between two unsympathetic men. Grudgingly they had given him refreshment and then pushed on to a county lockup. He remembered that the doctor looked at him and asked how he felt. The physician had whispered to the sheriff that he had the appearance of one who might be in for a spell of brain trouble.

And then, this awakening. Grant knew that prisoners awaiting trial were not made to wear this shameful livery. It was given to those already sentenced. It seemed only yesterday that he had been in the Weld camp. He held his head between his hands. As he took them down from his burning forehead he saw the long nails he had kept so carefully manicured were cut short and grime-rimmed. The skin of his hands seemed rougher and redder. They were the hands of those who had done manual toil.

Between the body of the prison and the guarding wall he saw men, in the same garb he wore, hauling stone and clearing up the yard. Warders with rifles directed their labor.

Footsteps along the stone passage attracted his attention. It was a warder. He was a heavy-set man with a prognathous chin and angry eyes. Yellow tobacco stains ran from the corner of a drooping mouth. He was hard, tough, irascible, fit being to tend such a flock as th's. He unlocked the cell after glancing angrily at the prisoner.

"Say," he snapped, "don't you know the regulations better than this? Roll up your bedding and clean your cell. I'll have to report you for this. This ain't the first time I've had to discipline you."

Grant shrank back as if expecting the word to be followed with a blow. What good would it do, he asked himself, to try to get information from such a one as this?

The warder looked at him suspiciously. The prisoner was attempting in a clumsy, inefficient manner to perform the simple task that is taught every convict on taking up such narrow quarters. The warder licked his lips as though he wished he dared punish the refractory convict.

"How long have I been here?" Grant nerved himself to ask.

"I don't know," the warder snapped. "I've only been in the new wing a month. I don't know when you came in." He smiled as though he had joy in what he was to say, "I can tell you when you go out." When Grant did not ask, he added, "You'll go out foot foremost when your time's up."

The door of the cell clanged after him. Grant sat in a state of lethargy. He felt if he concentrated sufficiently, the lost days would come back to him. The effort hurt him and brought no reward. A sentence of the doctor's recurred constantly. "Deliberate intent to kill." He had murdered Frank Sutton, but the dead man's threat was fulfilled. Sutton was free and he was here in the same prison. And when his time came he was going out feet foremost.

Presently a file of convicts in lockstep passed his door. Not a man of them turned to look at him. Guards, armed guards everywhere kept watch on such as he.

Later, a small man in prison dress came sweeping the corridor. He seemed to linger deliberately at Grant's door. But when he spoke it was out of the corner of his mouth. He did not dare to seem to slacken in his task or to turn his head. Grant supposed that at each end of the corridor more blue-coated guards were stationed.

"He says," whispered the little man, and Grant knew he referred to the warder, "he says you've gone dippy. They're goin' to bring the doc. What's the big idea? You can't put nuthin' over them d—n doctors. I've tried."

The little man went scurrying away as though he had seen the watchful eye of a guard. What he said gave the wretched Grant more food for thought. His behavior had seemed suspicious to the guard, who was to bring a physician. This could only mean that until today he had understood prison discipline and rules. Grant had read of dual personalities and of how men had lost their identities after severe shocks. Such cases had always seemed to him far-fetched and verging on the fraudulent. And yet, here he was, a numbered inhabitant of a city of criminals, a man whose hands were stained and nails blackened with manual labor.

The guard brought a young, alert man to the cell door and unlocked it. It was not an unkindly face that stared down at the man on the cot's edge.

"Stand up," the guard thundered.

Meekly, Payson Grant arose and stood clumsily at attention. The doctor's manner was such as people use with children or those mentally deficient. When he sent the guard away he looked into the convict's eyes and smiled.

"Don't excite yourself," he began. "Tell me what's made you different today in looks and voice and memory. Why do you need to know when you came in, for instance?"

"Doctor," Grant said, with a kind of desperate eagerness, "today is the first time, for I can't tell you when, that I remembered who I am. I swear to you I have no memory of this cell, or these clothes before my consciousness on waking up this morning. I practically began my life today. For God's sake, tell me why I'm here!"

"You are here for murdering a Captain Sutton."

The prisoner hardly dared ask the question that was to gain the answer he wanted.

"How long am I in for?"

"You're a lifer," said the doctor.

"Can you remember any particulars of the trial?"

"Fairly well," the other answered. "You see it gained a lot of prominence because the Welds were mixed up in it in a sense. Your stand that you didn't know who you were or anything about the affair made it bad for you. Weld's testimony convicted you."

American "Rush" Only Result of Evolution

Many Americans think that other Americans are hurrying pell-mell and getting nowhere. They wish their countrymen would stop stepping on the gas and enjoy the scenery. And even though they drive slowly themselves they complain that the view is spoiled by a billboard.

But they overlook a number of things. America isn't composed of one kind of civilization. You can take your pick. If a billboard spoils your view, you can read a book until your train goes out where they are few and far between. Or, if you are motoring, you can think serene thoughts until the road turns. If you hate to mingle with the cutting-up trade at the rush hour, you can buy an abandoned farm and spend your life before an open fire. The rural free delivery will pass your door to carry your manuscripts to market and bring back the checks.

The conditions of modern American life have simply evolved. They have their roots far back in the motives that brought the early settlers to this country, in the European environment from which they were escaping, and in the obstacles that confronted them. —Roy S. Durstine in the Forum.

No Gallantry to Men

Attention is frequently called to the fact that women have accomplished almost none of the really great things. Is this due to the habit of forever praising women? There have been millions of really great men. These have had their share of human weaknesses, but they have accomplished great practical results. Is this due to our habit of pointing out men's faults frankly? In all history gallantry was never shown a man.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

FROSTY WORK

"The other evening," said Master Very Cool, "a great many of us were too busy with the flowers to go to the windows, and only a few went to make the castles.

"We'll see that the flowers are thoroughly nipped first. Some of them are quite apt to get all right again owing to Mr. Sun."

"Very well," said Jack Frost, "we'll all go to the windows tonight.

"There are so many windows and such lots of houses that we can all have a fine time.

"But we must work hard, my workers, yes, we must work very hard."

"Our work is like play," said Master Very Cool. And Chilly nodded his head, as did the other Frost brothers and workers.

"Chilly," said Jack Frost, "you go in that direction and take with you half the followers.

"Then separate and go to all the different windows." Jack Frost pointed with a hand and fingers that looked as if they could freeze anything.

The fingers did not need to touch most things—a wave was all that was needed.

"Will you go the opposite way?" asked Chilly.

"Yes," said Jack Frost, "and Master Very Cool can come with me."

Master Very Cool was delighted that he was to go with Jack Frost and Chilly was extremely happy that he was chosen as a leader.

They all started off and they went to all the different windows.

"We'll build castles," said Chilly. "Watch me as I use my magic brushes."

They watched Chilly work and they followed his example, and in the opposite direction Jack Frost was teaching all those who had not yet learned how to make the wondrous castles.

"We'll Build Castles," Said Chilly.

Now Chilly and his friends started in. They made castles and turrets and towers.

They made great bridges which went between two castles and under the bridges they made terrible looking dungeons which they thought were very fine.

Chilly made a flag pole on top of one of the castles and then he made a flag, of which he was very proud.

"I think I will choose this castle as my own," said Chilly.

And then they all decided they would take naps in their castles on the windows.

Such dreams as they had of other castles and other turrets and towers.

They knew how they could make them the next time, for in the dreams that come to Jack Frost and his brothers, they get many new ideas of castle-building.

Of course they never have to be taught how to nip the flowers. But they are always trying new pictures and studying to make more marvelous ones all the time.

But then Mr. Sun came along and slowly the frost castles left the windows, for they were taken away and destroyed by the Frost Brothers.

They will never teach anyone else how they do their work, but the next night they were around again and made new pictures!

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Engine Cab in Front

So that the engine men can more easily control it, the cab of a huge rebuilt locomotive on a western line has been placed in front, directly over the cowcatcher, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The engine and tender together are more than 104 feet long, weigh over 322 tons, and a tractive effort of 105,340 pounds is possible.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

MOUNT LASSEN NOT DEAD BUT DYING

Although Mt. Lassen volcano has reached a period of old age, it is still capable of producing another eruption, according to Howel Williams, commonwealth fellow from the University of Liverpool, England, now studying at the University of California, who has just returned from a three months survey of the Lassen Park area.

Williams explains that Dr. R. H. Finch, in charge of Mt. Lassen observatory, has been able to detect a tilting of the mountain toward the suothwest, resulting probably from the pressure of steam or molten lava beneath its foundations. This same phenomena, in much greater degree, is observable over a considerable period before an eruption at Mt. Kilauea, Territory of Hawaii, Williams says. When the plug of lava in the mouth of Kilauea rises, the sides of the mountain actually bulge out.

During his three months' stay at Mt. Lassen, Williams made a complete geological map of the park area, covering some 200 square miles. To complete this work he walked on an average of 15 or 18 miles a day and covered approximately 1,200 miles during the summer.

He estimates that there are about twelve well defined volcanic cones within the park and a number of others which have blown to pieces or otherwise broken down. In addition to his survey work he aided in further checking the theory advanced by Dr. Finch, that there was a lava flow from Mt. Lassen as well as mud and steam during the eruption of 1915. Dr. Finch has found positive evidence of a lava flow at that time, upsetting previous opinions advanced.

Williams also brought word of recent studies on the old lava flow of Cinder Cone in Lassen Park, revealing that the first lava eruption from that peak probably took place about 500 A. D., and the last one about 1851, with three others intervening. Former estimates have placed the number of eruptions at two, and the date of the last one at 1770. The corection has been made by determining the direction of magnetization in the body of lava with compasses and comparing the direction with the present direction of the magnetic north. The lava was magnetized as it cooled at the time of the eruptions, lines of magnetization pointing in the direction of the magnetic north. The magnetic north is changing from century to century, however, at a known rate. By comparing the magnetic north of the lava fields with the present magnetic north of the earth, a discrepancy is noted which offers information as to the age of the lava flow. A. E. Jones, a former student at the university, aided in the magnetic study.

Lassen Park is unique among world volcanic exhibits, Willams says, because of the great number of protrusions of solid lava which have taken place. During the recent eruption of 1915, he says, a plug of lava was shoved up through the walls of Mt. Lassen, and at varicus times in the past entire mountains have been formed in the immediate vicinity of Lassen Peak by this same means. Steam pressure in place of molten lava pressure has played the most important part in recent activity of the region.

In spite of its old age, Williams further adds, Lassen showed considerable energy during its last eruption, sending out a blast of steam and rock that blew trees flat four miles from the crater.

PARK VISITORS SET NEW SEASON RECORD

Attracting huge numbers of visitors during the last travel year, which officially closed September 30, California's national parks again ranked among the leading natural attractions of the world, according to figures compiled and just released by the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior.

In the Sequoia National Park alone, 98,205 persons from all parts of the world were registered. Park records show that cars registered through the Ash Mountain checking station on the Generals' highway leading to Giant Forest on every day from February 13, 1927, to the close of the season, September 30.

General Grant National Park, little neighbor of Sequoia Park, was more popular than ever before, with 51,988 visitors during the season.

The figures show that the peak month for both parks was July, and the next largest August. Of the total who visited the larger park, 55,943 were making their first visit.

The Grand Canyon National Park attracted a total of 167,226 in the 1928 travel year, as compared with 162,356 in 1927, and the majority in each case was automoble travel.

DRIVE LAUNCHED TO ABOLISH DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSING

Adopting as a slogan, "Seventeen Means Safety," a drive to abolish dangerous grade crossings on California highways was formally launched by the formation of the Grade Crossing Saftey Conference, in San Francisco, last week. The conference has been organized in the interests of of the $10,000,000 Grade Separation Bond Act which appears as No. 17 upon the November ballot.

William J. Locke, of Alameda, accepted the chairmanship. J. Hartley Russell was named vice-chairman, and A. W. Boyken, secretary. The conference discussed methods of advising the voters of the importance of the Grade Crossing Separation Act. This act provides for the removal of upwards of 450 dangerous grade crossings upon California roads. It was pointed out that with so many measures upon the ballot, special attention would have to be directed to meritorious measures to obtain their ratification by the people.

"I believe everybody is interested in promoting safety upon the highways," said Locke. "We must drive home to the voters that '17 means safety' at grade crossings. The Railroad Commission figures show the appalling increase of 40 per cent annually in crossing accidents. Already 200 are killed and 700 injured yearly, It is unhtinkable that we should continue, a day longer than necessary, these death dealing crossings which menace every motorist. The only way to stop these frightful motor accidents is to do as England and France do, separate the grades. I feel that we have the support of the people of the state in this great safety work."

In 1878, two years after the telephone had been invented, the city of St. Louis had but twelve telephones. The other day it was figured out that Greater St. Louis now has more than 200,000 telephones.

British Columbia leads the provinces of Canada in the matter of telephone development, having 18.7 telephones per 100 population.

BABSON FINDE ELECTRICITY SELLS BELOW PREWAR LEVELS

Roger Babson is one of the country's great economists and financial experts. He has recently made a study of public utilities. This is what he thinks of present-day electric service:

"Electricity is virtually the only thing that is lower today than before the war. Moreover, it is taking the place of domestic servants and allowing those who never could afford servants to have more leisure.

"Imagine, for example, trying to hire a domestic servant for 16 per cent less wages today than in 1913. It cannot be done! And yet the cost of operating electric servants in the form of vacuum cleaners, electric dishwashers, washing machines and other household labor-saving devices, is actually 16 per cent less than it was in prewar times. This reduction in power and light rates has been accomplished in the face of increasing cost of everything else."

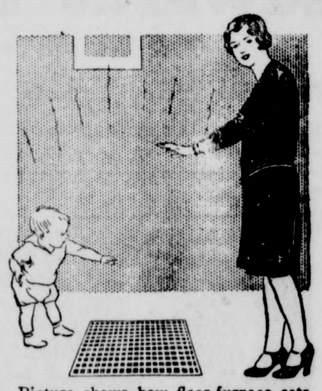
Good heating and fuel economy

come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed



Picture shows how floor-furnace sets in floor. Heat is controlled by handy valve.

You know how homes differ in their size and the type of building materials used. There is 10% less heat loss through plaster and board walls as through brick walls. And there is 25% less heat loss through insulated walls. These are some of the facts our staff considers before recommending a heating system. For after all, a furnace must keep your home warm no matter how your home is built.

Only trained engineers can weigh such facts and fit the proper heating equipment to each home.

There is no obligation if you have one of our men look over your home. The facts he finds will be taken back for careful consideration by our staff. Then you'll know the recommendations they make will be good. As we will always be in business we can only afford to recommend good gas heating equipment to our customers. And that is one reason why all our recommendations are carefully made. Another reason is, this company knows by years of carefully kept records, that good heating and fuel economy come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed.

A postcard or phone call will bring a heating expert to your home.

VOLUME II FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1928 NUMBER 12

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Historical Wisecrack

Secretary: "And what shall I do with your mail, Mr. Lincoln?"

A. Lincoln: "Just forward it to my Gettysburg Address."

Maid: "The furniture man is here."

Mistress: "I'll see him in a minute. Tell him to take a chair."

Maid: "I did, but he said he would start with the piano and radio."

Shingles—all grades and kinds.

Doctor: "You say you didn't sleep all night because the window curtain was up? Why didn't you pull it down?"

Patient: "Doctor, I should reach across the street."

Mother: "It is rumored that you and John aren't getting on."

"Nonsense! We did have some words and I shot him, but that's as far as our quarrel went."

If dissatisfied with other coal, remember ABERDEEN.

Robert: "Mother, I had such an awful dream last night. Does it mean anything?"

Mother: "Yes, it means that I know now what became of that chocolate cake I couldn't find last night."

Diner: "Waiter, take this coffe away. It's like mud."

Waiter: "Well, it was ground this morning."

Calveras Cement, Rock, Sand, Gravel, etc.

"Sadie," said her mother, "why is it that you and your little brother are always quarreling?"

"I don't know," replied Sadie, "unless I take after you and he takes after papa."

Postmaster: "Your letter won't go. It's overweight."

Mrs. O'Grady: "And what is that?"

Postmaster: It's too heavy. You must put another stamp on it."

Mrs. O'Gray: "Sure, it's joking you are. Another stamp would make it heavier than what it is already."

Idleness is one thing that never works out right.
